Lindsay joined Arras Services in 2002 with specific skills and experience in project offices and project co-ordination.

Before joining, Lindsay worked within the Consulting Division of Hewlett-Packard, first as a Project Co-ordinator and latterly as the Project Office Manager for the UK.

During this time, Lindsay has had exposure to a variety of programmes and projects across numerous vertical markets including, e-commerce, retail, telecoms, public sector and defence. Having performed the role of an all-round project co-ordinator for a number of years, Lindsay became the Project Office Manager – defining and establishing the Project Office for the UK operations as well as providing guidance and support to the establishment of project office functions in the European regions.

Since joining Arras, Lindsay has also had the opportunity to deliver project office support services for a major UK mobile phone operator on a short-term basis, allowing her to maintain specific skills in this progressive area of project management.

Lindsay is a keen promoter of good project office support and is also an active member of the Programme and Project Support Office Specialist Interest Group (PPSO SIG) – providing voluntary help in the areas of web development, media and conference arrangement.
